Saving the plant

Congressman Gene Taylor would urge Army to give facility to Port & Harbor

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Congressman Gene Taylor is not content for the Mississippi Army Ammunition plant at Stennis Space Center to rest in mothballs.

Speaking to an overflow crowd at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Morning Edition Friday, he discussed his efforts to insure occupancy of the multi-million dollar facility.

The ammunition plant, which employs approximately 1,700 persons in Hancock, Pearl River, Harrison counties and St. Tammany Parish, is faced with closure in a few months if $90 million appropriated for its operating budget is not authorized by April.

"The Department of Defense is an increasingly unreliable customer," said Taylor. He noted the $90 million would buy operation for the remainder of the year, allowing the Army time to convert the plant for another use, such as production of truck axles, he said.

The 155mm artillery shells produced at the plant are sufficiently stockpiled and defense monies remaining in the $300 billion budget will be shuffled around by Defense Secretary Richard Cheney among priority projects such as the B-2 Bomber.

"The removal of General Manuel Noriega from Panama was much needed, but exceedingly expensive," said Taylor. "Events such as this have caused defense monies to be reprogrammed—it's unprecedented."

The General Accounting Office ruled last week the Bush Administration could not impound funds appropriated for 1990 for use in the following year's budget. But, if the ruling is challenged in court, Taylor feels the last chapter will be written.

Faced with an April deadline, he said, "A lawsuit would be the last straw. We don't have time for the court to rule."

County Port and Harbor the day they (contractor Mason-Chamberlain) walk out the door," Taylor said.

Port and Harbor unaware of plan to acquire plant

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Hancock County Port and Harbor Director Harold (Buz) Olsen may be the recipient of a generous gift from the United States Army if the "Privatization Task Force" assembled by Congressman Gene Taylor is successful in its efforts.

The Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant at Stennis Space Center, which cost in excess of $600 million to construct, is the unexpected windfall.

The news came as a surprise to Olsen Friday morning at a Hancock County Chamber of Commerce-sponsored breakfast meeting when Taylor announced if funding authorization fails, he would ask the Army to turn the building over to the Port and Harbor.

"It is a gift everyone would like to have—14 acres under one roof," said Olsen.

"But I don't think it is economically feasible (for us) to maintain it while it is unoccupied."

Port and Harbor Director Nancy Gex was also taken by surprise at the prospect of the commission becoming landlord of the plant.

"If it comes to pass, the decision to be able to market the facility will rest with the whole commission," Gex said.

"There are a number of questions I would like answered," she said. "If they do see fit for us to have it, we will certainly attempt to find the most suitable industry to occupy the facility. Our community must do everything possible to see that these jobs are not lost."

Olsen was encouraged by comments made by Stennis Space Center Director Roy Estess at the recent Hancock Bank Economic Symposium, in which he suggested NASA may look at constructing canisters to be used in the rocket launch system project currently underway.

"They are looking at employment of 10,000 people (at Stennis) in a few years. We just need to get there quicker," said Olsen.

"If we cannot prevail upon the Army (to continue operation of the plant) I'd like to see it turned over to the Hancock

"If they leave the building unoccupied, within six months, the machinery will be worthless," he said. Given the plant's prime location and the building, which would cost $600 million to $700 million to construct, "Even I could market something like that," Taylor said.

"I would like to see us set an example as a successful attempt at turning this from public to private sector," he said. The Cheney 'hit list' includes 50-80 military installations according to Taylor, who would like to see the Hancock County facility make a smooth transition to a profitable private industry.

For advice, Taylor has turned to a "Privatization Committee" composed of approximately 20 Coast businessmen who started their careers in the public sector and are now in private industry, including Chuck Ramsey of Bay Technical Associates, Dan Mortimer of Gulf Coast Fabrication and Hank Renken of Ter Chemicals.

Tax discussion draws 'standing room' crowd

BY DENA BISNETTE

Despite heavy rains Wednesday night, two Bay St. Louis businessmen who called a public meeting about taxes found themselves with a standing-room-only crowd.

The meeting, conducted by Robert Kane and Ames Kergosien in the Mississippi Power Company auditorium, drew comments about topics ranging from ways to keep taxes from rising to the quality of the local educational systems.

Kane, who conducted most of the meeting, ended by stating that another meeting may be called later.

"We want to stimulate awareness and concern about the economic state of this country," he stated.

"The problem of a declining economy is regional," he said. "We can't control it, but we must eliminate those contributing factors that we can control."

Among the problems Kane and Kergosien addressed were declining sales of single family residences in Bay St. Louis and Waveland, with a difference of 39 percent between 1988 and 1989. In addition, the value per unit is down, Kergosien stated.

Second homeowners are selling their property and, as Kane explained, many of them are selling them simply because they cannot afford the taxes.

At the same time, the local sales tax revenues are declining and the total sales tax needed to maintain the cost of living increase for local municipalities is growing instead of declining.

Automobile tags cost more than they did before and it takes the owner of a rental property two to three months' income just to pay their annual property taxes, which have climbed 83 percent since 1984 and are about the average for the southeastern U.S., Kane added.

The two also expressed concern over the fact that the cost of education is rising, but American College Test scores are dropping in both the Bay St. Louis-Waveland and Hancock County school districts.

Kergosien also talked about the problem of businesses closing in Bay St. Louis and Waveland. To illustrate this, he presented a poster with 12 photographs, stating that he had simply left his office with a 12-exposure roll of film and had taken pictures of the first 12 businesses he saw which had closed during 1989.

Local elected officials were invited to discuss the local economic climate. Bay St. Louis, Hancock County and the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board were represented, but the Waveland Board of Aldermen was unable to attend due to a meeting scheduled the same night.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward Favre said the problems need to be addressed one by one, then repeated his plea for considera-

Proposed senate bill provides exemption for federal retirees

BY DENA BISNETTE

Proposed changes in legislation regarding the taxation of state and federal retirement benefits may affect a large segment of coast residents.

State Senator Victor Franckiewicz Jr. of Bay St. Louis said the calls he has received on the subject have shown him that many of these retirees are Hancock County residents.

Under current state law, Franckiewicz said, federal retirement benefits are taxable after the first $5,000 of income.

State retirement benefits are totally tax free, he added.

In a recent Supreme Court case, it was ruled that the state cannot discriminate by treating federal and state benefits differently.

The senator said that led to several bills ranging from total exemption to total taxing.

The State House of Representatives has passed a bill making the first $7,500 of both types of benefits tax-free.

"That would cause the state to lose about $2 million a year," Franckiewicz explained.

The senate version which finally passed last week would exempt the first $5,000 of both and would apply to 1990 income but not 1989 payments.

"That's no change for the federal retirees and taxes state retirement, but when other exemptions are applied, it's actually about $18,000 to $19,000 before paying," the senator added.

That plan would also generate about $1.2 million for the state per year.

"One problem I see with the house bill is the state is cutting most base budgets by three percent, which means lay-offs, reduction of services and that kind of thing," Franckiewicz stated.

He said the senate version of the bill still has to go to conference committee.

The Gulf Coast delegation in the senate was also supporting a bill to exempt federal benefits completely, which would have worked to the advantage of federal retirees.

However, that measure was introduced as an amendment to another $5,000 bill, but it failed to pass in full senate.

Franckiewicz said the matter now goes to the house and it will be about two or three weeks before a compromise can be expected.

Privatization committee supports transfer of ammo plant to county

BY JANET MCQUEEN

A group of businessmen assembled by Congressman Gene Taylor as a "Privatization Task Force" feels the Mississippi Army Ammunition plant could be successfully operated by the private sector.

"I feel there is ample precedence for the wholesale transfer of surplus military installations for use by communities and private industry," said member Dan Mortimer, president of Gulf Coast Fabrication.

He cited the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which was targeted for mothballs by the Department of Defense in 1972. It was given to the New York City Municipal Government, which assumed control of the facility in entirety.

"No dollars changed hands," said Mortimer, who noted within six months the operation employed a full work force of 5,000 persons. "There was even a short period in which they assisted in the maintenance cost."

"I look at it as a win-win situation for us and for the Army," he said. The $60 million necessary for mothballing the plant, and the $5.6 million per year to keep it that way, will be money saved, according to Mortimer.

"We are not re-inventing the wheel, this has been done successfully many times before," he said. "I realize it is a daunting task, but everyone has to pull together to preserve and protect the quality of life."

The privatization committee has approximately 20 members who have "enough talent and marketing capability for a focused and well-directed effort to mitigate the damage to our economy," he said.

The Hancock County Port and Harbor is a locally controlled entity well capable of managing the facility, with the assistance of State Economic Development and support of the surrounding counties," he added.

Mortimer is even more sold on the quality of the work force on the Gulf Coast.

"I have operated shipyards on the upper East Coast and the West Coast...and man for man, woman for woman, I would match 150 of my employees against 250 anywhere else. People just don't know what kind of labor force we have here."

NASA to prepare supplement to EIS on Advanced Solid Rocket Motor program

NASA officials announced plans to issue a Notice of Intent to prepare a supplement to the final Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) for the Space Shuttle Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) program.

In response to a new and comprehensive manual defining wetlands that was issued by the Federal government on wetlands protection, NASA determined that approximately 200 acres of the Stennis Space Center (SSC) would be affected.

This determination procedure was documented in the final EIS and the Record of Decision. NASA previously took steps to minimize wetlands impact and it committed to maintain an environmental balance. This supplement will fully document this intent.

In support of the goals of the National Environmental Policy Act, the supplement to the EIS will provide updated, site specific information addressing facility definition and layout, affected wetlands at the Stennis Space Center test site, mitigation plans, and secondary impacts from exhaust products.

Publication in the Federal Register and in local newspapers of the Notice of Intent to prepare the supplement is anticipated on March 9. NASA anticipates that the supplement will be made available to the public by June 1990.

The supplement will be distributed to local libraries, government officials and local organizations. Advertisements of availability will be placed in local newspapers upon release of the supplement. Letters of review will be received during a 45-day period following release of the document and will be answered on an individual basis.

All correspondence concerning this issue should be addressed to: NASA Environmental Officer, Code GA00, Stennis Space Center, MS 39529-6000.

Canned goods for the Hancock County Food Pantry, another lady's pet project, were collected as usual during the meeting. The door prize, a lovely potted plant donated by hostess Beverly Coogan, was won by Mattie Garcia.

Winner of the 50/50 was Eunice Foret.

Medical Assistants

'Heart Disease and Smoking,' a deadly duo, was Dr. Bharat Sangani's message as he spoke at the Feb. 15 meeting of Coast Counties Medical Assistants.

Dr. Sangani cited smoking as one of the greatest causes of heart disease, a cause and risk factor which is preventable. He also discussed cholesterol and stated that maintaining a normal body weight and exercising regularly would help to keep cholesterol at a normal level while simultaneously keeping a healthy heart rate.

Education chairman Peggy Layman, CMA announced a basic CPR course to be held tentatively in May. This course would be approved for CEUs.

Roger Reed MD, of Gulfport, will hold a round table discussion on emergencies in the medical office at the March 15 meeting. Members will be notified of the location.

tion of consolidation of local government services.

"Nobody wants to talk about consolidation. Everyone's afraid of job losses or loss of identity—we can't afford to be stand-offish or individualistic or anything else which has kept us from consolidating in the past," Favre stated.

He added that using sales tax to help ease the property tax burden, an option which was discussed at a recent meeting of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and County officials, is a good idea if the sales tax is used in place of some of the property tax, not in addition to it.

Hancock County now has a version of the home rule Mississippi cities have had for many years, but it is different and counties are not authorized to collect sales tax, said Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas. He blamed some of the increasing property tax burden on the state legislature, which tends to mandate programs without providing funding.

Bay St. Louis Councilman-at-large James Rutherford said he believes steps should be taken toward instituting a metropolitan form of government in Hancock County.

Criticisms of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District led to comment from School Board President Charles Benvenuti.

He said the reason he is on the school board now is because he was not happy with the public school system and urged people to get involved.

"Even consolidation is not the answer. The answer is getting you all involved in education," he said.

Gaynell Roberts, a teacher at the Pearl River Community College-Hancock County Vocational-Technical School, suggested that Hancock County follow the lead of Tupelo, which has joined Itawamba Junior College in working with industries to develop training programs specific to their needs.

After hearing some additional comments, Kane closed the meeting by requesting that its participants lobby their legislators for changes in tax laws designed to reduce the burden on the individual taxpayer.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Some folks are beginning to wonder if it wouldn't be a good idea to start drawing up plans for an ark.

I realize there are areas in the world where rainy seasons last for weeks and even months, yet I can never recall that happening along the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Our grounds are 'super saturated' with water. If anyone intends to grow a garden this year, I would suggest they plant rice or watercress. We get half a day to one day of sunshine for every five or six days of clouds and rain.

I was able to plant a few red potatoes around Valentine's Day and I hope they haven't floated away. It will be interesting to see how well they will do.

There are only three days of the 1990 Mardi Gras left. Today's big parade is the St. Paul's in Pass Christian.

Pass Christian's parade consists mostly of floats with family groups. It is one of the larger parades on the Gulf Coast.

Tuesday, Mardi Gras Day, will be celebrated this year with two parades in Hancock County.

The Krewe of Nereids, followed by the Krewes of Eros and Hancock are scheduled to roll at noon from the Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center along US-90.

The parade was originally scheduled for last Sunday, but was delayed because of rain.

The Krewe of Real People is set to roll at 1 p.m. from the St. Rose de Lima Church, Necaise Avenue, Bay St. Louis.

The floats in the Krewe of Real People are mostly family affairs like the parade in the Pass.

I hope everyone will have a safe and happy Mardi Gras.

It is very hard for a person like myself to slow down and take it easy for a few days.

Thought I would do my column for today's paper in addition to an editorial on my longtime friend, Mr. Alden Mauffray.

It so happened that I was in the hospital when he died Monday evening.

I had a hernia repair Tuesday, and I sure hope it is the last because it was my fifth.

I am now at home taking it easy, but I am still thinking about all the things I could be doing.

It has always been hard for me to slow down, but now I have to slow down for a few weeks.

I am sure my wife Jane will be glad when I am recovered.

I understand through a rumor, a pool at the office has the Echo employees taking guesses as to when I will return to work.

I sure hate to miss the Mardi Gras parades.

All I can say is, I will follow my doctor's orders and listen to Jane.

Your right to vote will be guarded

What could be more basic to our concept of "government by the people and for the people" than the right to put an issue to a vote?

Well, from 1916 to 1922 in Mississippi you had that right.

What the constitution basically said in 1916 was that if the people wanted to propose legislation, or if they disagreed with

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Cochran helps steer Educational Excellence Act to Senate passage

Senator Thad Cochran says the Educational Excellence Act passed by the Senate recently should help the nation's schools to meet the challenges of the modern world.

Cochran, a member of the Senate Education Panel and a sponsor of the bill, said in urging passage of S. 695, "We need to ensure that students receive the highest quality education."

The senator stated, "We all agree that our education effort needs to be improved."

He noted the technological developments of the Space Age, and said, "The challenge is to develop the skills needed to take advantage of our new economic opportunities."

Cochran said the 92-8 vote on final passage showed "the Senate is strongly committed" to helping provide federal assistance to improve teaching and student achievement.

The Educational Excellence

Act "incorporates President Bush's proposals and goals for our education future," Cochran said.

Cochran, who helped floor manage the bill to passage, also pointed out that language was included to clarify provisions for teacher standards do not apply to home schoolers or private schools.

The bill provides funding for helping school districts address drop-out problems and combat drugs through the drug-free schools program.

The bill provides incentives for schools to raise student achievement levels and funds to assist states in educating and assuring an adequate number of well-qualified elementary and secondary school teachers.

It also includes continued authorization for Chapter I programs.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

Another 'gift' from Jackson

Legislative watchers...at both federal and state levels...understand that "hidden" taxes come in all shapes and sizes.

There is now a "hidden" tax on businesses in Mississippi traveling under the guise of a "gift" to business owners.

Watch the "gift."

It is, supporters say, a "gift" from the state Employment Security Administration to faithful payers of the state's unemployment compensation tax...a tax paid, incidentally, totally by business.

Here's the issue:

...Mississippi's unemployment compensation trust fund balance—the pool from which unemployment benefits are paid—has a $50 million surplus. Mississippi is a leader among the states in the stability of its trust fund. This means that Mississippi's businesses have been paying more unemployment compensation tax than has been needed.

...The Employment Security Administration proposes to temporarily decrease the tax rate because of the surplus. That's good.

...The Administration also proposes to temporarily increase unemployment benefits because of the surplus. That's also good.

...But...Administration proposes a permanent $5 million tax increase on employers for additional administrative funds. That's bad. The Commission presently has a $65 million administrative budget. This $65 million is collected from employers sent to the U.S. Department of Labor in Washington, and returned to the Mississippi office.

The proposed $5 million additional administrative funds would be taken from employers and sent directly to the state's Employment Security Administration in Jackson.

And, while the tax rate reduction and the employee benefits increase are temporary, the administrative tax increase is permanent.

...In effect, the proposal gives back to employers the surplus money they have paid into the unemployment fund, then adds a permanent tax to take it all back.

Business owners and operators in Mississippi will want to give close attention to this "gift" from Jackson.

EDITORIAL

Alden L. Mauffray

A part of Bay St. Louis' history ended Thursday with the burial of Alden L. Mauffray.

Mr. Alden, or Uncle Aldie, as many of us called him, was one of a kind.

He was at the top of his profession, knew more about ingredients of hardware items than some of the manufacturers.

In a lifetime you will not meet many who have "plowed the trade," as the old saying goes, for more than 75 years.

The contents of his store were numerous, including many items younger generations never knew existed.

Today, we in the business world depend on computers to keep track of inventories. It was not so with Mr. Alden who kept his inventory in his head.

He knew every item in his store and its exact location and position on a shelf.

Many town folks had a saying, "If it is hardware and has been made, Mauffray's got it."

Thousands of green trout (black bass) and perch caught by Uncle Aldie graced the tables of many citizens.

Of this fishing we would have to say, he was an ardent fisherman.

The word 'ardent fisherman' was made famous in this area by one of his fishing buddies for many years, the late L. S. "Deo" Elliott.

Elliott, a linotype operator at The Sea Coast Echo and later at The Hancock County Eagle, wrote a weekly fishing column titled, 'Kantcha Ketchum'

Mr. Alden's life, during his later years, was built around his wife of almost 60 years, Flora, and the hardware store she and he operated in the mornings until last September.

During his lifetime, he set aside time for his family, church, Boy Scouts, community, (past president of Bay St. Louis Rotary Club and Hancock County Chamber of Commerce), and recreation. He even attended the 1932 Rose Bowl to see fellow Bay St. Louis residents John A. "Baby Grand" Scafidi and Harry "Wop" Glover play before the world.

To his wife, Mrs. Flora, son Larry, sister, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, other relatives and many friends, we can say, Mr. Alden will be missed, but never forgotten.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Community should have been allowed to watch both parades

To the editor:

Was it a lack of understanding that Nereids, one of our parades we like to watch, would reschedule their parade at the same time as the Krewe of Real People? We would like to have seen both.

From those who have spoken to me, this is the consensus of the community.

Yes, it did rain. Sorry, there had to be cancellation. But rescheduling could have been different if consideration had been given to the time frame of the Krewe of Real People—which is a tradition.

Shouldn't there have been an interest from Bay St. Louis and Waveland city officials that these parades would not conflict? Everyone would have been happy.

Please, let's think with the future in mind.

With love and kindness, Geraldine Lang Bay St. Louis

Equipment is dispensable—well-trained deputies are not

To the Editor:

Mr. Ronald Cuevas

President

Board of Supervisors

Dear Mr. Cuevas:

We shall greatly appreciate it if you could give us a logical explanation as to why you and your colleagues desire to further reduce the internal security of Hancock County.

I know from personal experience that not only the internal security of a county, but the internal security of our nation is vested in local law enforcement. City police departments and county sheriff's offices have common goals with different areas of responsibility.

When you read in the headline that FBI agents arrested someone, and if you read the whole article, there is a good possibility you will find the arrest was made in a local jail cell. Often as not the alleged perpetrator was put there by a well-trained and dedicated deputy sheriff, a man who put his life on the line for the betterment of society.

The proposed $5 million additional administrative funds would be taken from employers and sent directly to the state's Employment Security Administration in Jackson.

And, while the tax rate reduction and the employee benefits increase are temporary, the administrative tax increase is permanent.

...In effect, the proposal gives back to employers the surplus money they have paid into the unemployment fund, then adds a permanent tax to take it all back.

Business owners and operators in Mississippi will want to give close attention to this "gift" from Jackson.

cies, the collection of criminal intelligence literally went to pot, i.e., our drug problem today. No pun intended.

Little red wagons are pretty, comfortable and fun to drive. I know, I have a blue one. They have a function that is dispensable. A well-trained dedicated deputy sheriff is not dispensable. Unfortunately, the dumb and stupid who are careless about the public safety and welfare seldom get hurt. Usually it is the good and the innocent who have to pay the price.

Sincerely,

Edward P. Gray, President
Ansley-Lakeshore Civic Association

Side Street Crossings

By Dena Bisnette

I love a Mardi Gras parade

I've seen Mardi Gras parades with floats ranging from tricycles with balloons on their handlebars to elaborately decorated flatbed trucks serving as moving stages for live bands.

I've enjoyed each and every one of them, from the kindergarten parades on up to Nereids and Real People. It's probably because I grew up with a daddy involved in little theatre and a sister who did dance recitals and developed a fondness for costumes.

The little kids' parades tend to be the most fun because you never know exactly what's going to happen. The only thing you can be certain of when you watch those is that nobody will throw the beads more than a couple of feet.

Well, I'll take that back. I did see a little southpaw who hurled beads six feet and more in a Krewe of Kids parade one year, and the fellow had a great wind-up. I fully expect to find his photograph grinning at me from the sports page one of these days, because he was born to be a pitcher.

I went to one of these, which I like to call "munchkin parades," on Friday. I was impressed with the exceptionally elaborate little costumes for a full court of royalty, who rode in little red wagons pulled by their kindergarten classmates.

Spectators got a kick out of the little queen's train, which was four feet longer than her wagon and somehow managed to fall out of the back of the people-powered vehicle. The train ended up dragging like a peacock's tail, or maybe a part of the float.

When I watch the grown-up parades, the crowds are nearly as much fun to watch as the krewe putting on the show. I have come to the conclusion that some people will wear anything for Mardi Gras, whether or not they are a part of the parade.

My husband Joe is a good example of that. He who complains about having to wear a tie to work and wants to wear white socks with a business suit. I expected lots of complaints from him about having to wear a tuxedo to see the Nereids ball.

Instead, he wanted to know whether he was supposed to rent the one with the long tails or the regular coat, and what color tie to order.

He wants to wear a costume to the parades on Tuesday. I suggested he go as a pirate, something I consider especially appropriate for this locale, but Joe wants to be the only animal I can't seem to beg, borrow or steal for the occasion.

If you see him second-lining in ordinary clothes, I couldn't find it and you might see this special "critter" on him next year.

I don't think Joe is quite as daring as some people are. I have seen all kinds of outfits, from men in halter tops and fruit-covered hats to people wearing so much Spanish moss that they looked like Cousin It with a perm.

Last year in Waveland I even saw a dog dressed as Rambo. He had ammo belts and everything. His owner, in camouflage, looked like a terrorist.

There are also the spectators who dress in normal clothing but paint their faces and wear glittery wigs. And, it's amazing how many will brave the elements to wear a show-stopping outfit that happens to be inappropriate for February's weather.

Down here on the coast, Mardi Gras beats Halloween. It brings out the sense of fun in people—and a lot of creativity.

How creative will I get on Tuesday? Well, I'm going as a reporter this year, but I'll wear doublets somewhere. They just make the most outrageous earrings!

Maybe we should all invite some of those bigwig fashion designers from up north to our Mardi Gras show. They might get some inspiration from it.

tion 33, and reserved for Mississippians the rights of initiative and referendum, or more simply—the right of the people to enact or strike down legislation by a vote at the ballot box.

And the people did exercise their right. In 1917 the Supreme Court affirmed the power of the people in a case that removed a controversial game and fish commissioner from office.

But in 1922, the court reversed itself in a case against Stokes Robertson, the state's revenue agent. The people of Mississippi, through their powers of initiative and referendum, had proposed legislation to change the way Robertson was compensated for his services (compensation which to date nearly $40,000 a year at a time the governor was paid $7,500 for his services.)

The court said that Section 33 was unconstitutional because when it was passed in 1916, the people did not vote on items in the amendment separately, as is required by Section 273 of the constitution.

James Tucker, as Paul, is a foil for the aggressive Esther, who is at once angry and protective of David. He provides a kind of understated relief from some of the heavier moments in the play in his second appearance with the Waveland Players, which hopefully will be one of many.

Krewe of Diamondhead stages fifteenth ball

Saturday night at the Diamondhead Country Club, the Krewe of Diamondhead held its annual bal masque, marking the organization's 15th anniversary.

The festivities began with the introduction of the officers of the Krewe of Diamondhead, followed by a drum roll as the captain, Benny Mistretta, entered the ballroom. He was attired in a purple cape appliqued in sparkling brilliants which formed the logo of the Krewe of Diamondhead.

The master of ceremony, Stan Robert, introduced the dukes to King Ali'i Honua XV and the officers who presented them.

They were Manny Gendusa, escorted by decoration chairman Laura Almerico; Murray Palmer, escorted by secretary Clarice Gustin and Harold Raine, escorted by publicity lieutenant Hilda Bourg.

A fanfare announced the arrival of the 1990 royal couple. King Ali'i Honua VX Ronald Bankston Sr. and Queen Linn Godard promenaded around the ballroom floor greeting their subjects.

Especially stunning was the queen's gown, which was of white sequins, brilliants and stones. Framing the queen's face was a jewel-encrusted collar flecked with brilliants. From it fell the royal mantle, emblazoned with the logo of the Krewe of Diamondhead. A rhinestone crown and scepter completed the queen's outfit.

The king wore white tails with a silver rhinestone baldric. The king's royal mantle and scepter matched the queen's.

Captain Mistretta proposed a toast to the royal couple.

The queen presented special gifts to her mother, Mrs. Corinne Ellery of LaCombe, La. and to her aunts, Mrs. Bess Schackai, Mrs. Eddie Marinello and Mrs. Ella Lashley.

The immediate family of the king was introduced. They were his son, Ronald Bankston Jr. and his grandson, Dustin Bankston, both of McComb.

The 1990 sea royalty was introduced, King Akua Kai XVI R. Boatright and Queen Nina Cotton.

The ballroom was decorated with balloons, beads, masks, doulloons, clowns, flags, flowers, streamers and lights in the traditional carnival colors of purple, green and gold.

Former land royalty attending the ball were 1976 King Joe Salvatore;

1980 Queen Lee Fredian; 1983 King Tommy Heier and Queen Hilda Bourg;

1984 King Jerry Bourg and Queen Lorraine Heier;

1985 King Tom Satterlee and Queen Laura Almerica;

1987 King Stan Robert;

1988 King Charles Johnson Sr. and Queen Elizabeth Claggett and 1989 King Herb Larson and Queen Dot Hoskins.

The former queens received bouquets of flowers with streamers in the carnival colors from the queen, and the former kings received boutonnieres in carnival colors from the king.

Past royalty from the sea krewe present were 1982 Queen Pat Stafford;

1983 King Lou Cotton and Queen Bernice Johnston;

1985 King Bud Freeman and Queen Mary Lou Freeman and 1985 Queen Jean Keen.

Other krewe officers are Henry Burkhardt, president and social lieutenant; Jerry Bourg, treasurer and Chris Arnos, parade lieutenant.

Music was provided by 'Montage.' The first dance of the evening was led by the royal couple, followed the past royalty.

Out-of-town guests at the queen's table were Lena Campora from Slidell, La., Mrs. Jody Sellers from Hammond, La., Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bowen from Roanoke, Va., and Sybil Champagne from Westwego, La.

The Riverview Extension Club held its February meeting at the home of Margie Welsh. Ten members and one guest were present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Margie Welsh. The educational notes read by Ethel Breaux were entitled 'Myths and Facts about Injuries.'

Money was collected for the ongoing project—needy newborn babies at Hancock Medical Center.

The awards luncheon held in January was discussed by the group. Everyone enjoyed making Mardi Gras pins as the craft of the month.

A delicious lunch was served by hostesses Delores Ouder and Ethel Breaux.

Miller, Everet reign over Notre Dame de le Mer ball

Notre Dame de le Mer Manor presented its first carnival ball Thursday, Feb. 15 at 6 p.m. in the community room.

The evening's festivities included a presentation of the Mardi Gras court with music provided by Ray Nobles.

Reigning as King and Queen de le Mer I, were Niles Miller and Therissa Everet. Maids were Louise Williams, Verna Buford, Catherine Heric, Rita Marti, Alice Wilhelm and Deliah Myers.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Karen Comprett's dancers and Vic Green's country music.

Captain of the Krewe de le Mer was Cliff Banderet.

Queen de le Mer Therissa Everet and son Donald 'Everet Jr. began the first dance, after which many light-steppers joined in.

The idea of the carnival ball originated with Cliff Banderet, assisted by Gertrude Norman, Pat Smith and Rhetta Cardin, who made the crowns, scepters and cloaks for the king and queen.

Others who assisted with decorating and refreshments were Sam Masson, Metta Mackbee and Marie Wandling.

The residents thanked Sunstates' management for helping support the effort.

"Guests looked on with spontaneity and playfulness and a gleam in their eyes to see their parents and senior-citizen friends entering into the gala carnival festivities," said Banderet.

Schwebel to reign as King Thoth XLIII

Elroy C. Schwebel Jr., son of Elroy C. Schwebel Sr. and Shirley Shaw Schwebel of Garden Isles, will reign as King Thoth XLIII during the Krewe of Thoth's parade today in New Orleans.

Schwebel, a Kenner resident employed with TWA airlines, is keeping up a family tradition by serving as king, his mother stated. Shirley Schwebel was queen for the Krewe of Atlas in 1972 and Elroy Schwebel Sr. served as king for the same krewe two years later.

The elder Schwebel's grandson, Scotty Hilburn, will serve as a page to King Thoth XLIII.

Elroy Schwebel Jr. is married to the former Marlene Keenéen of New Orleans and they have one daughter, Stacey Lynn.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Last ce<sup>re</sup> for King Cakes and all those Mardi Gras trappings before we turn to Lent, so you might want to pick up a King Cake or two or more at one of our area supermarkets before the curtain goes down on another Carnival season and its attendant feasting!

Meanwhile our stores offer bargains for Mardi Gras and afterwards—at any rate, we won't be short of good food, will we?

For instance, National offers pork spare ribs at a special price, and if you'd like to know how I plan to cook mine, try:

HONEY-SHERRY-GLAZED SPARE RIBS

4 lbs. meaty spare ribs
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
2 Tblsp. wine vinegar
2 Tblsp. minced onion
Pepper, salt to taste
1/2 cup honey
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce
1 tsp. celery seed
1/2 cup dry sherry

Combine tomato sauce, vinegar, onion, salt, pepper, honey, garlic, Worcestershire sauce, celery seed and sherry; simmer for approximately 20 minutes.

Cut ribs into serving pieces, and bake for 30 minutes in a 400 degree oven. Pour off drippings. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees, and bake for 1 hour longer, basting frequently with the sauce. (Four to six servings.)

Or, if you're in an outdoors cooking mood, cook the ribs over charcoal for approximately 30 minutes to cook out fat, pour off the drippings, and cook for approximately two hours longer, basting frequently with sauce. —From "Favorite Recipes of America's Food Editors" (1970)—and I've been happily using this recipe from time to time ever since! It's from Julie Benell of The Dallas Morning News.

If you choose some of the first-cut pork chops on super-special at Jitney Jungle (or the pork fingers at Winn-Dixie) you might also try cooking them by the above recipe, adjusting your cooking times, of course, that goes without saying, but I'm saying it anyway, lest you burn it all up and blame me! And, here's another recipe:

PORK-AND-RICE BAKE

6 pork chops
3 Tblsp. melted shortening
1 cup uncooked long-grain rice
3/4 tsp. chili powder
Pepper, salt as desired

1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup canned tomatoes
6 green pepper rings
3/4 cup shredded processed American cheese

In a large skillet, brown the chops in shortening for 20 minutes, and drain off excess fat. Sprinkle chili powder, pepper and salt over chops. Add the rice and chopped green pepper and spoon canned tomatoes over rice and chops.

Cover skillet and cook over low heat for 30-35 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add pepper rings, cover again and cook for 5 minutes longer. Sprinkle top with cheese and cover until cheese melts. (Six servings)—From "Home Cooking" magazine.

MIROTON DE BOEUF
(Even sounds better in the French language, instead of saying "leftover roast beef" doesn't it?) To serve two or four, depending upon their appetites, start with four or six slices of leftover cooked beef. Chop several slices of bacon into sort of squares, along with two onions, and don't forget to add a bit of chopped parsley.

Then, over a moderately hot fire, in a large heavy skillet (it's my iron skillet for me) fry the bacon and onion, add a bay leaf and a dash of thyme, along with a sprinkling of pepper and the parsley. While you're busily stirring the pot, splash in two or three tablespoons of vinegar, and if you've any broth on hand, splash in a few tablespoons full. (If not, add a bouillon cube, diluted with water).

Heat all this together for a minute or so before settling the leftover beef into the skillet, spooning the sauce over the beef. It's far more than yesterday's beef dressed up in onion sauce—the secret, as any chef would tell you, is that you must, must, and again, must not simply reheat the beef with the sauce, as that toughens the meat. Instead, you must first warm the sauce, then add the beef. —From my cookbook, "Katy's Cookbook, Cooking Up a Storm."

Whether you say "potatoes" as most of us do, or with the broad "A" of "potatoes," the savings will speak volumes if you pick up that big bag (15 pounds, no less) of potatoes at Delchamps—and if that's too many potatoes for you, well, share with a friend and enjoy cooking up your share.

And, lest you're worrying, potatoes aren't all that fattening, it's what you put on them or mix them up with. Actually potatoes are healthful food, full of all sorts of good elements.

For example, when I make potato salad, instead of a rich creamy or mayonnaise dressing, I make the potato salad of the countryside of France, splashing the cooked potato slices with olive oil and white wine and seasonings (the true reason I do this is that my two sons and six grandsons do not care for mayonnaise in any dish, and they far outnumber me!)

And most of them are "bigger" than I, now! So, I bow to their wishes! Besides, potato is delicious, made this way—try it!

And for a tasty, low-calorie dish, try:

CHEESY OVEN CHIPS
4 medium potatoes
1/4 cup butter or margarine
3 Tblsp. grated Parmesan cheese

1 Tblsp. grated onion
Pepper, salt to taste
Preheat the oven to 425 degrees. Cut washed potatoes into one-eighth in slices, leaving the peels on (I love potato skins) and place in a single layer on slightly-buttered baking sheets.

Melt the butter or margarine in a small saucepan, add the onion, and seasonings, and brush this mixture on the potatoes. Bake for 15 to 20 minutes, or until the potatoes are crisp and golden. Sprinkle with the cheese and enjoy. (Four to six servings, unless I'm there!)

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Diamondhead Garden Club

The monthly meeting of the Diamondhead Garden Club, held at the Community Center, was called to order by President Gern Garberg on Feb. 21.

Following the Pledge of Allegiance was recited. Virginia Volgesky introduced all guests in attendance.

Mary Cassis reported on the Valentine Day activities at Beauvoir in which the Diamondhead Garden Club took part.

A donation from the club was presented toward the purchase of 100 large azalea plants for Beauvoir. The Diamondhead Auxiliary, my children presented a program of songs.

The Diamondhead community under the leadership of garden club members Jackie Tocino, chairperson, and guided by Margaret Grace, will be the first in a Gulf Coast community to have a recycling pickup at the curb.

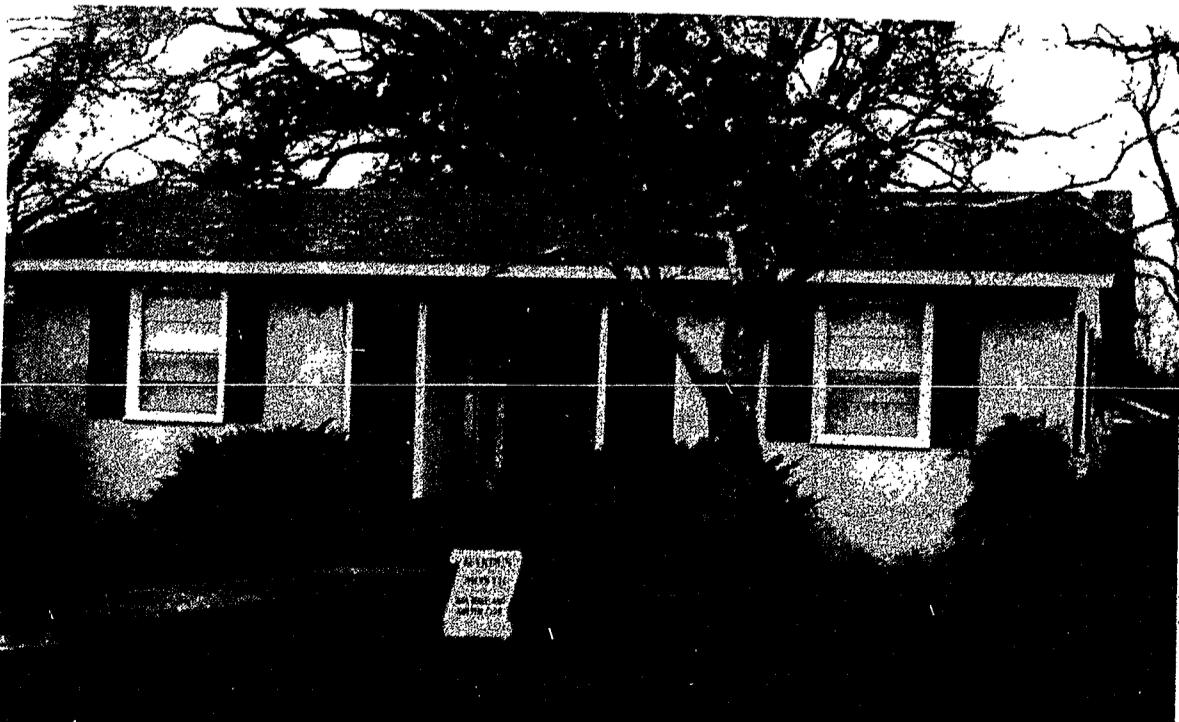

The program will begin March 1. Each household will receive containers for Diamond Head households to deposit newspapers, vegetable bottles and aluminum cans.

Ways and Means chairman Lee Fredian reminded members of their duty to come to the head March 31 at the Diamondhead Community Center.

Proceeds will be donated to the Hancock County Historical Society to assist in landscape restoration at the society office/house in Bay St. Louis. The affair will begin at 7 p.m. For reservations, members are requested to contact Joann Pow or Lee Fredian.

Litter Control chairman Marion Kielasch announced a 'Litter Clean-up Day' in Diamondhead scheduled for March 19. Marion urged all to cooperate in getting the community 'spruced up' in preparation for the annual Pilgrimage Tour of Homes.

The first Flower Show-Pilgrimage workshop will be March 7 at 10 a.m. in the Diamondhead Community Center with Jean Keen and Alice Braemer in charge. A sack lunch should be brought by all members planning to attend. Contact Alice or Jean for further information as to items you will need to bring with you.

Entries in design are to be in clear glass containers this year in selected categories. Two new categories will be exciting additions to this flower show, 'Small Special Designs' and 'Hanging Designs.' Alice displayed the special racks made for these two categories, and I made suggestions for those who might wish to enter.

In addition to the March 7 workshop at Diamondhead, Alice announced that the Gulfport judges will be holding a workshop on March 9 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Best Western Inn on the beach in Gulfport. Diamondhead members are invited to attend.

The Diamondhead Pilgrimage will take place on Wednesday, March 21. Chairman Johnnie Boatright announced the following homes: the David Ludwig home which overlooks a lake, the Jon Ritten home situated on Bayou Benesheewah, the James Wahl home, the lovely gardens of the Ted Godard home, the Jack Robinson home located south of the Interstate, on the waterfront, and the Michael Doherty home.

McMahon showed slides of birds, habitats and preferred feeding plantings. Following the slides, the speaker concentrated comments on the Eastern Bluebird, which is in accord with garden club efforts to establish more bluebird boxes in the community.

The beautiful, but particular species prefers nesting cavities from 4-6 feet from the ground in semi-open areas.

The entire hole should be no more than 1 1/2 inches and a metal washer or plate may be put around the hole to prevent gnawing and enlargement by squirrels.

Fruits, such as white raisins, may be added to bird stations to attract the bluebird to your yard. Hand-outs were made available to those present from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Following the informative program, which was augmented by a pair of Eastern Bluebirds in the Community Center atrium outside, the meeting was adjourned until March 14.

Lunch for the April 6 trip will be at The Cabin. The bus will leave Diamondhead at 8:30 that morning for a day of pleasure and history.

Diamondhead Garden Club was chosen to receive the first place award for the 1989-1990 Year Book. A hearty thank you was extended to Linn Godard and her committee.

Nancy Shuback announced the Garden of the Month award to Tim and Connie Mackey, the Golf Course Award to Gene and Jeanette Fedric and the Community Beautification award to the Property Owners Association for the intersection of Golf Club Drive and Diamondhead Drive East.

A poster of horticulture tips was presented by Annette Sauvage and Evelyn Kibler announced the Heart Association Banquet and Style Show presentation to be held on March 23.

The program of the day was presented by Linda McMahon, district conservationist for Hancock County, and was one close to the hearts of all Diamondhead Garden Club members—'Inviting Birds into your Back Yard.'

The Saving Place

BY DEENA BISNETTE
American Legion Post 77 in Waveland has discontinued all of its bingo games.

Post Commander Lawrence
Freeman stated that the post received a letter last week from State Attorney General Mike
Moore through its department adjutant in Jackson. The letter named four posts still conducting bingo games, including posts in Meridian, Gulfport and

"We immediately faxed a letter stating we had stopped all of our games and would conduct no more until bingo was declared legal by the proper authorities," he added.

The last game Sunday drew an exceptionally large crowd.

"We had a really good turnout," Freeman explained. "We wish we could have a crowd like that every bingo night."

"The people are very upset."
